Direct Payments and Community Services

Direct Payments is 'money given to individuals by social services departments to buy the care and support they have been assessed as needing'. DPs not only offer choice and control but if managed well 'produces positive outcomes for people across different population groups'. This is because it places the person at the centre of decisions relating to their care and support needs

Priority within the Adult Social Care Transformation programme to increase uptake of direct payments inline with national benchmark (26%)

Project priorities developed by stakeholders and people who draw upon care and support and best practice

How will progress be monitored?

- It should be noted that despite the variety of achievements and activity planned over the next 12 months, transformation will be challenging, especially without transformation investment. Transformational investment will help accelerate the uptake of Direct Payments and personalisation.
