What is Future Parks?

rethink, invest, regenerate

- An opportunity to start to change the way we manage our parks to ensure they are sustainable for the future
- Work in partnership across different sectors
- Improving health and wellbeing
- Encouraging greater use and accessibility
- Create different funding models
- Supported by National Trust, Heritage Lottery and Ministry for housing and local communities
- Currently undergoing changes to reflect the current situation as a result of Covid 19

BRISTOL FUTURE PARKS

Project outcome

A 25 year plan that clearly sets out how we will manage parks into the future, the BFP project will specifically contribute towards

- Building community capacity and interest in parks and change the Council's approach, capacity and skills to be an effective partner and create tools to deliver real opportunities and projects

- To identifying where health inequality is and piloting approaches which contribute towards reducing Health inequality and make Parks a venue for delivery of health and wellbeing activities.

- Developing new and innovative ways to generate income which can be invested into our parks and green spaces to ensure that parks and green spaces receive the necessary revenue and investment resources to support their maintenance and improvement,

- Working in partnership and supporting volunteering and community action
